DESCRIPTION : The education of their children is a critical goal for almost all Indian parents. However, while providing the best education is priority, not many parents may actually be able to meet this goal. This is because the cost of education has been spiraling over the years, with education inflation pegged at a whopping 10%. Starting to save early is critical. If parents start to save for their child's education immediately after the birth of the child, they would have 18 years to save for graduation and 21 for higher studies.
